The Sultan Invests Abbas With Vice-Regal Authority.

ENGLISH CONTROL IN THE LAND OF THE PHARAOHS.

Uprising of Africans on the Gold Coast-Quiet Restored in Buenos Ayres-Bad Effects of the British Miners' Strike-The Missouri's Crew Feted-Genera

ALEXANDRIA, April 4 .- The Turkish imperial yacht Izzeddin, having on board Ahmed Eyoub Pasha, the special envoy of the Sultan of Turkey, who brings to Egypt the firman of investeur for the Khedive, arrived here this morning. As she steamed into the harbor she was greeted with salutes from all the warships and the forts. Shortly after she came to anchor Ahmed Eyout Pasha and the fourteen members of his suite were rowed to the quay in boats. As the envoy and his party stepped upon the quay they were received by representatives of the Khedive. A guard of honor, consisting of British and Egyptian troops, was in waiting and received the envoy with military honors. The party at once proceeded to the railway station, where they took a special train and that the Dahomans continue to advance to ward the coast, and that they are gaining large reinforcements to their ranks. The dispatch adds, it is expected that they will started for Cairo. As Egypt is a pashalic of Turkey, the firman of the Sultan investing young Abbas, the new Khedive, with the power to rule the country in the name of the Sultan, is an es-sential to the stability of his throne. The presence of a large number of British war. ships at Alexandria has been regarded as n the part of Lord Salisbury's govern ment to impress the young ruler with the im-portance of England's friendship, and to some extent to neutralize effects of the Sultan's firman, which maintains the sovereign rights of the sublime Porte over all Egypt. The significance of England's naval demonstration will be understood when it is shown that more tired of the diplomatic leading-strings, and fears are entertained that he will evenbreak loose from control. He is ambitious of making a figure in history, and is persuaded that the time is opportune. So it undoubtedly is if he knows how to avail

AN ETE ON THE SOUDAN.

The Soudan is open to at least partial reconquest through the decline of the Mahdist fanaticism and the internecine rivalries of the tribes. Abbas is ambitious of effecting the tribes. Aboas is ambitious of electing the reconquest, and can scarcely be restrained from setting about it at once. The English representatives do their best to discourage him, as it would not suit British policy to allow him to conquer the enemies from whom they are, according to diplomatic fiction, protecting him. If the armies of Egypt could penetrate him. If the armies of Egypt could penetrate to Omdurman and Khartoum the last color able excuse for their presence in Cairo and Alexandria would disappear. The logical proof of the ability of the Egyptians to protect themselves would be more complete though less unkind, than that given by the boers of the Transvaal republic, who beat their alleged protectors in battle. To obviale the possibility of mischance the English do their best to frustrate the young Khedive's desire of conquest. Their best efforts will hardly prove enough, however, for in their protest they concede to him the right to conquer Dongola if he can. That is, they forbid him going any further south at present. There is little doubt that the reorganized Egyptian army will be able to drive organized Egyptian army will be able to drive the dervishes from Dongola, where they were never really welcome and where they have long since become detestable. But if Abbas recovers Dongola who shall prevent him from carrying the war further south? Having been given the inch he will try hard to take the ell. And he will not want for advisers skillful enough to show him how to take his ell with ful potentate with a sense of the enormous power of his British protectors and also the necessity of conforming his policy to their wishes. But as France, Russia, Italy and Germany have also made navel demonstrations, the effect of the display may not be

It is understood that the Firman confides to Abbas the guardianship of all those Egyptian possessions dependent upon the Ottoman Empire, as the previous Firman had confided them to his brother, Tewfik. This proceeding will be attended with great pomp and circumstance, for which England cares nothing. She means to retain a foothold on the Nile and continue the work of absorbing. Egypt. and continue the work of absorbing Egypt.
This is clearly shown by the opposition to the Egyptian proposition of constructing a railway up the Nile Valley to Dongola, which would open a commercial road to the Soudan and Central Africa and bring a traffic of the most lucrative nature over Egyptian terri-tory and for the benefit of Egypt, English advisers instead suggest that a route be opened from Berber, on the Nile, to Suakim, on the Red Sea, which would secure the same lucrative traffic for the British steamship companies at Port Suakim and to the detri

AFRICAN UPRISINGS.

PROUBLE ON THE GOLD COAST—THE DAHOMAN ADVANCE. LONDON, April 4.-Advices from East Africa state that there has been trouble lately among the natives on the gold coast. The chief seat of the unrest was in the eastern Sorbo country, and arose out of the conflict of British sanitary regirements with native customs. Sakitty, the King of East Corbo, according to native custom, was buried in his house. Commissioner Williams, how-ever, insisted upon burial in the proper place, and fold the natives that intramural burials had been prohibited by ordi-nance. A dispute arose on the point, which resulted in an attack upon the Com-missioner, who took shelter in a German house, and telegraphed to the Governor. Hostilities were averted. Sakitty being exhumed and reinterred elsewhere. The late King held a collar and sword from Queen The Victoria, bestowed upon him by Her Majesty for efficient service rendered to the British Government in the Ashantee war of 1873-74, although he was practically forced to side with the British under pain of death and immediate occupation of the country. Otherwise, it is stated, the late Chief was disposed to sympathize with the Ashantees.

A grand canquet will be given Wednesday evening to the American visitors, including the three American relief commissioners.

DISASTROUS EFFECTS OF THE BRITISH MINERS' STRIKE.

LONDON, April 4.—The effects of the strike of the coal miners in Durham threaten to be more deplorable than was anticipated by any one who has examined into the trouble. The stocks of fuel in the large factories are almost gone, and it is probable that in a few weeks a number of heavy failures will be announced There has never been so grave a crisis in the history of trade and industry in the North of England. All the berths on the river Tyne are occupied by vessels made idle by the strike, and firms with a European reputation are in jeopardy. Huge coal yards, formerly the scene of the busiest activity and on which entire communities depended for their ex-istence, are now idle. The strike has al-ready done more harm than any modern strike, and its effects become worse daily.

ELEVEN SQUARES BURNED.

New Orleans Visited by a Destructive

NEW ORLEANS, April 4.- In two fires yesterday, four cotton presses, covering five squares of territory, and six squares of residences were destroyed. The cotton press fire started amid some cotton on the sidewalk in front of the Fire Proof Cotton Press. A passer-by, it is thought, threw away a cigarette, which fell in the cotton. The flames reached the 30,000 bales of cotton in the press and de-stroyed it all. The Shippers' Press was the stroyed it sil. The Shippers' Press was the next to catch, and three-fourths of the 50,000 bales went up in smoke and flames. The flames continued southward and consumed the Independent Press, with 5,000 bales of cotton. The New Orleans press, the largest in the city, and stored with 40,000 bales, followed the others to ruin. With the assistance of a fire company from Mobile the flames were checked at this point and incalculable damage prevented. The residents for three blocks around the presses removed their furniture in fear of the flames.

The wall of the Fire Proof Press at Terpsichore and Peters streets fell while the firemen were at work on the building, and Capt. Alfred Dupree, Lieut. Shaw and Pipeman Bordeaux of Company No. 13 were caught beneath the mass. They were soon rescued, and Dupree was found to be only slightly injured, the others seriously.

The Fire Proof Press was valued at $100,000,

The Fire Proof Press was valued at $100,000, the Shippers' at $10,000, the Independent at $100,000, the New Orleans at $200,000, All these belonged to a British syndicate which bought them two days ago. About eighty-five thousand bales of cotton were burned, which, at the rate of $30 a bale represents a loss of $2,550,000. The cotton was mostly insured in foreign companies, but the buildings and machinery were insured in home companies.

insured in foreign companies, but the buildings and machinery were insured in home companies.

It was while the entire Fire Department was at work on the cotton-press fire that the second conflagration broke out, which swept away four squares of dwellings and stores in the poorer section of the city. This fire started in a cottage on Laurel, near Third street, and as it was nearly an hour before engines were ordered there from the burning cotton-presses, it had destroyed the block by the time the department began fighting it. With such a start and with a high wind blowing, the flames were uncontrollable. With the exception of three dwellings in the square between Constance, Laurel, Second and Third streets, the fire made a clean sweep of everything between Laurel and Magazine and between First and Third, spreading to Annunciation. About 115 dwellings and one church, the First Baptist on Third and Magazine, were destroyed. The fire was prevented from spreading across Magazine by the department making a desperate fight there with Sigmund Katz's brick dwelling forming a barrier. This was the only thing that saved the aristocratic portion of the city from destruction. The total loss by this second fire is estimated at over $1,000,000, which falls principally upon local insurance companies.

A negro who was looting was stabbed. A Chinaman was burned to death. A later attempt to fire another part of the town was frustrated. The police have no clew to the perpetrators.

DUBLIN, April 4 .- Intense interest is maniested here in the trial of Mrs. Annie Margaret Montague, wife of Mr. Robert Acheson Cromie-Montague, of Cronmore House, Townland of Ballylease, County of London derry, who was indicted here on Saturday fo manslaughter for killing her 8-year-old daughter, Helen, and for cruelty to Austin, Walter and Gilbert, three of her sons, under the age of 14 years. The trial was set for March 17 at the Londonderry Assizes, but her counsel, Mr. William McLaughlin, Q. C., and Mr. John Ross, Q. C., made application for a change of venue on the ground that public feeling in Ulster was so against their client, who was a convert to Catholicism, that it and impartial trial there, where religious feeling was very high. The application was Dublin Assizes, where it came on for trial to-

At an early hour crowds collected in the vicinity of the Court-house and immediately after the opening of the court-room it was filled with an interested crowd, who eagerly discussed the case in all its bearings before the hour set for the formal entry of the the hour set for the formal entry of the Judge. After the Judge had taken his seat Mr. J. Atkinson, Q. C., Solicitor-General for Ireland, who prosecuted the case, said that the crown did not charge the prisoner with the intention to kill or injure her daughter Helen. Owing to the extreme and unreasonable punishment she had indicted upon her, resulting in the girl's death, she was guilty of manlaughter, as charged in the true bill the rand-jury had returned against her.

Much delay was met with in securing a jury. Mrs. Montague's counsel challenged every Protestant among the talesmen, and the crown objected to a number of Catholics. Finally twelve men were secured and the in lictment was read to the accused. She pleaded not guilty to all the counts therein.
The crown decided to proceed against her on the indictment charging her with man-laughter.

The details of the crime charged sgainst Mrs. Montague, which were fully cabled at the time, have causedimore comment than any murder in Irish criminal annals. The any murder in Irish criminal annals. The child, a little daughter 3 years old, had been badly used by its governess, in addition to being the object of hatred of its mother. For some childish escapade on the part of her charge the governess locked the little girl up in a dark room as punishment and then informed the mother, Mrs. Montague, of the child's offense and the punishment she had meted out to her for it. The mother, going to the dark room in which the child had been confined by the governess, tied her baby daughter's arms behind her back and wound the end of the cord about the child's arm to a ring in the wall, half stringing her up and fastening her to the wall. The child cried piteously to be released, promising never to offend again; but the mother went away and locked the door behind her. After the mother left the child's cries grew fainter and then ceased entirely. Three hours after her incarceration, when the door of the dark room was opened the child was found to be dead. She had been choked to death, her face being horribly distorted.

The mother, Mrs. Montague, was at once taken into custody, and in spite of the efforts of her influential friends and relations and in spite of the please of able counsel she was formally committed for trial of the charge of murder.

It is said that other serious instances of d, a little daughter 3 years old, had been identified as that of Julius McArthur, who killed Deputy Sheriff Charles H. who killed Deputy Sheriff Charles H. Smith of New Hampshire May 16, 1891, while resisting aresst for stealing a horse, and who escaped from the jall in this city July 17, 1891. McArthur is supposed to have gone West. He is a remarkably fluent talker. He can preach a sermon, make a prayer or deliver a poetical oration in a manner to win high compliments, while his education and natural judgment enable him, where his record is not known, to gain consideration as a polished gentleman. The crime for which Simpson is wanted was committed less than a month after his discharge from the State prison of Massachusetts, after serving a three years' sentence for bigamy. Leaving Boston he went to Vermont and there stole a horse and carrlage at Enosburg Falls. He was overtaken near Farmington, N. H., with the team and in the attempt to arrest him shot Officer Smith, who, however, held his prisoner until secured by others. The day after he was placed in jall "McArthur" attempted suicide by opening a vein. He was then placed in the woman's department of the jall for medical treatment and later succeeded in making his escape.

NATIONAL CAPITAL.

THE PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS-WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 4.—The expectation of an interesting discussion on the silver April 6. question, based upon Mr. Morgan's resolution instructing the Committee on Finance to examine and report upon certain phases of the subject, seemed to have no particularly attractive power on the general public, for the galleries to-day had even less than the usual number of spectators.

The famous McGarraghan claim made its appearance in the shape of a bill reported by Mr. Teller from the Committee on Judiciary to submit to the Court of Claims the title of McGarraghan to the grant of land so long claimed by him. It was placed on the calendar, the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee reserving the right to oppose it, as he should determine after examining the subject. Sherman attempted to hold off the sliver talk by calling up a bill for a uniform standard of classification and grading of grain, but was stopped by an objection from senator Stewart. The appropriation bill next got in the way, but Senator Dawes withheid it temporarily.

Mr. Morgan thereupon took the floor to address the Senate, but yielded to Mr. Wolcott, who gave notice that he would address the Senate on the sliver question Wednesday hext.

Mr. Morgan said he knew that the subject examine and report upon certain phases be laid aside and that Mr. Morgan be permitted to proceed with his remarks. An attempt was made to get from him an idea as to whether he would occupy the rest of the day. His reply to that was that he had never been able to measure the time that he would occupy in making a speech. He was permitted to proceed unconditionally.

Secretary Blaine and Gen. Foster had a conference with the President this morning in arrangements for a closed season in Behring Sea this year and the President devoted a great part of the day to the consideration of that subject denying himself to all other visitors. It is understood that the negotiations for a modus vivendi are nearing conclusion and that when the compact is signed arrangements will be made to exchange ratifications of arbitration.

The President sent the following nominations to the Senate to-day: Med ical Director John Mills Browne to be Surgeon-General and Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, with rank of Commodore. James B. Greer to be a Rear-Admiral.

"If I am to be removed," he said, "I will have a statement to make, but for the present I don't care to discuss the matter. BRIDGES SWEPT AWAY.

MONTREAL, April 4 .- The Salmon River in Huntington County, overflowed its banks yesterday, finding vent in the flats near by ance of one vast field of water dotted with houses. Then the ice began with houses. Then the ice began to break up in the river with a tremendous rush. A channel was forced open and buge masses of ice came bearing down carrying with them the steamer Greanda to a mile below Dundee. Next came the large iron highway bridge from Fort Covington, N. Y., a mile below Dundee, floating on top of the ice and rushing along at a great rate of speed. This was followed in the same way by the Grand Trunk Railway Bridge from near the same place and the flume of one of the Fort Covington Mills. These were followed by the masses of lumber, debris from bridges, trees, etc. A large number of boat-houses along the banks of the river were either carried away or ground to bits. The cause of the flood was the breaking away of the Mears mill dam near Fort Covington. All traffic on the Grand Trunk Railroad between Fort Covington and Messins is suspended for the present owing to the bridge having been carried away.

The Magnificent Died Unabsolved and Unrepentant.

The Magnificent lay dying. The sins of his past rose up before him in mutinous array: absolution must be sought, but from whom? Around him was a crowd of courtiers and venal priests, who preached an elegant philosophy and practiced coarse licentiousness. ness.

They had been the boon companions of his

They had been the boon companions of his convivial moments. In the hour of death, when the shadows of an impenetrable future were already casting themselves ominously over a present fast slipping from his grasp, Lorenzo turned from the priests of the circle with the sense of the hollowness of all the support and consolation they had to offer to the bed of death. Their readiness to absolve him was a measure of the worthlessness of the absolution when it was obtained.

Then the vision of the one man who had ever denied his authority and denounced his administration rose up before Lorenzo—the Prior of San Marco, with his pronounced features, furrowed forehead, aquiline nose, set mouth and lined cheeks. Intense must have been the surprise of the great teacher when the message reached him. "Lorenzo desires your presence." Savonarola went at once, but not only, or even primarily, as the priest; he was the guardian of the liberties of Florence. The coming interview was a great opportunity.

Lorenzo and Savonarola met in the cham-

The story comes to us from the age of Savonarola of the three demands of the friar, cognate with the three great sins which specially disturbed the dictator's conscience: A declaration of faith in God and his church; restoration of that which had been wrongfully seized; liberty for Florence, The second demand probably proved the crux. At any rate, Savorarola went out from the presence unsatisfied, and Lorenzo the Magnificent died, unabsolved. Such, at any rate, is Villari's account in substance, which he defends in a note of considerable argumentative power.

There can be no doubt that this was the story generally received in the century following the death of Lorenzo, and although it is doubted by an authority like Ranke, and denied in toto by Roscoe, who makes Savonarola unnaturally complaisant, the deduction from probability is all in its favor.

Social Life in Chicago,

Although disguised with all the appurtenances of luxury and beauty in house decoration, and expensive and beautiful dress, Puritan New England lives again in the large and representative element which rules Chicago society, writes Mrs. Reginald de Koven in the April Ladies Home Journal. Thus it happens that the social atmosphere of this great, rushing Western cliques is purer and clearer in its tone—it is saie to say—than that of any other city of equal size in the history of the development of civilization. It has passed into a proverb that divorce is easy and frequent in Chicago, but the fact is that only three divorce cases of people known to the world of society have been known in the history of the city. The old lines of duty to the domestic relations are inflexibly adhered to and less countenance given to an easier interpretation of such duties than in any other of the large cities of America. Wealth also is so evenly and generally distributed that the possession of it, to a large extent, is taken for granted, and judgment of character singularly little affected by it. This fact gives rise to another characteristic of chicago society, and that is the unusual absence of that distinctive form of human ambition which has its aim wholly in social advancement, an ambition which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up false gods to be worshiped, and which sets up fa

The Judge told O'Connell that it was a good thing he didn't kill swift, as he would have committed a murder if he had, and O'Connell replied that he was sorry he didn't kill him. The private watchman claimed that Swift bit him in the cheek. The Judge fined Swift $10.

Fortunate is the man or woman residing in a malaria-ridden locality who escapes the dreaded scourge. Not one in a thousand-does. When the epidemic is a periodical and wide-spread visitation, it is just as common to see whole communities suffering from it as single individuals. The most vigorous constitution is not proof against it—how much less a system feeble or disordered. As a means of grotection against malaria, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the supreme medicinal agent. It will uproot any form of malarial disease implanted in the system, and even less emplanted in the system, and even from some most malignant and deadly, such as the 1sthmus of Panama, Guatemala and the tropics generally, it is justly regarded as an efficient safeguard. No less efficacious is it as a curative and preventive of chronic indigestion, liver trouble, constipation, rneumatism, kidney complaints and is grippe.

Another Cyclone Brewing in the Western States.

KANSAS AND COLORADO THE CENTER OF DISTURBANCE.

The Barometer Indicator at the Lowest Point on Record-Heaviest Rainfall for Years at Farmington-Five Inches of Snow Fell in Minnesota-The Local Re-

KANSAS CITT, Mo., April 4 .- Dispatche from the West indicate that another cyclone threatens Kansas. The barometer has fallen to the lowest point ever known in this secstorm is raging there. This morning high d here, and there was every winds prevailed here, and there was every appearance of a repetition of Friday's storm. Considerable excitement exists here over the very great possibility of this city being visited by a cyclone to-day. The signal Service has sent out a builetin, dismissing all the schools and stating that the conditions for a cyclone are favorable. The same barometer and conditions exist in Northwestern Kansas and this city that existed in the localities struck by the cyclone last week. The wind is blowing a gale here.

FARMINGTON, Mo., April 4 .- The heaviest rainfall that has been experienced here for night. More than five inches of water fell streams are unprecedentedly full. It is reported that about 150 yards of the track of the St. L. I. M. & L. Ry. are washed away just below De Lassus, and that more than a mile of the B. T. & M. Ry. is swept away. Much fencing and many bridges have been carried off:

KILLED BY A TORNADO. CHERRYVALE, Kan., April 4 .- The country a mile east of Cherryvale was struck by a dozen houses were demolished, two people, names unknown, being killed. In Cherryvale a woman was killed by lightning, but the wind did not touch the town. Dexter, in Cowley County, is also reported to have suffered from the wind. The Western Union wires are down again in some sections. The indications here to-day point to the probability of another wind storm before night. The barometer is steadily failing, the sky is brassy and a strong south wind is blowing. An inky black cloud is said to be hanging over the section southwest of Arkansas City, and the local weather bureau predicts more storms. C. L. Westlate, whose skull was fractured during the storm which devasted Towanda on Thursday night, and the infant child of Eimer Hail whose leg was broken have been added to the list of fatalities since last night, making nine in all. The death of Mrs. J. R. Kerr was incorrect. She is improving. dozen houses were demolished, two

A FREAK OF THE GALE. LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 2.-Twice during the gale of yesterday the wind blew at velocity of seventy miles an hour. At one of these intervals the gale accomplished a st unaccountable feat. Four years ago a four-story building was built, abutting the broken wall of a building that had been destroyed by fire. The wall of the burned building remaining was more than one hundred feet long and nearly a story high, and the space between the wall and that of the next building addictions was not wide enough to introduce tween the wall and that of the next building adjoining was not wide enough to introduce a knife-blade. Small as the crevice was, the force of the gale acted on it like a wedge and laid the old wall flat as it separated with a knife, and with each brick remaining in its proper relation with the others. The loss to the city by yesterday's gaie is estimated a between $50,000 and $75,000.

CYCLONE AT KIRKSVILLE. KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 4 .- A cyclone accompanied with heavy rain struck this city at 10 o'clock last night doing considerable damage, but no fatalities reported. The entire upper front of the three brick buildentire upper front of the three brick buildings, occupied by Cross & Bro., groceries, Cole & Green, furniture and J. E. Owen, grocery, were blown out, falling into the street and the rear end of one building collapsed. Two new dwellings, owned by Thoms Sees, were lifted off their foundations and badly wrecked. The State Normal School building, which was unroofed in Friday's gale, was damaged to the amount of $10.000 by the heavy rain of last

HAIL AND RAIN. GREENSBURG, Pa., April 4 .- A terrific wind, nail and wind storm, accompanied by light-Westmoreland County at 7 last evening, doing great damage. The wind was very severe. The Scottdale Rolling Mill was badly wrecked. For a time the people were badly panic-stricken and fied to the basements of the houses, expecting every minute to be carried away by the gale. No one, however, was seriously injured. The loss to property can not be estimated at present.

BRIDGE WASHED OUT.

HILLSBORO, Ill., April 4. - The flood that has visited Central Illinois has done thousands of dollars' damage. The Big Four bridge over Shoai Creek, six miles west of this city, is washed away, and all trains go over the O. & M., and Wabash Railroads, East and West, via. Pana, Taylorville and Litchfield.

TRACK WASHED OUT.

FORT MADISON, Io., April 4 .- Last night's storm washed out 600 feet of track on the St. Louis, Kansas & Northern Railway and buried it four feet deep under the mud. Travel will will be delayed about eighteen hours.

"Forest Park was pretty badly torn up by the big rain storm," said Park Commissioner Fechter this morning, "That impetuous little upstart, the River Des Peres, broke loose again this morning and tore several footbridges away from the banks. I have just received word from Supt. Callahan that there is only one footbridge standing and that the angry stream is playing havoc along its banks. The gravel roads are all furrowed with guilles caused by the flowing water; in some places the water tore up gravel and macadam completely, ruining the roads. This is very unfortunate as I wanted all the money I could get for beautilying the park and didn't anticipate any expenditures for repairs. By the way the Carondelet people have been kicking for a pond in their park. They've got one this morning about ten acres in extent. The roads down there are completely ripped up. AT THE DEPOT.

The great need of the city for a new Union Depot was evident to everybody at the old depot early this morning. The tracks and the space between them were covered with water from 3 to six inches deep, and about the only persons who left the depot with dry feet were those who had worn water-proof boots and ladies and children who had been carried to and from trains. The scene for a time was not unlike a street scene in the City of Mexico directly after a tropical rainstorm, when hundreds of ladies and children and gentlemen also are picked up by cargadores and carried across the flooded thoroughfare. Several of the incoming trains were late this morning on account of the storm.

BURNED OUT THE SWITCHBOARD.

The lightning played with the wires of the Signal Office at police headquarters last night and this morning as it never did before. Operator McCormick and Detective Dotzman, who were in the room, say that the whole place seemed to be on fire at times. The lightning ran up and down the gas pipe and other iron pipes and rods in the room, and evury fuse in the switchboard was burned out, breaking the connection with every police station and all the city institutions and other public buildings. Mr. McCormick had a supply of extra fuses on hand, and at once went to work to repair the damage, defying the lightning, as it were. He was soon in communication again with all the police stations, but left the damage done was widespread it was not'of a serious character. The storm broke forth about 6:30 o'clock and lasted for one hour. Traffic on the Iron Mountain railway was practically abandoned for that period of time. The landsilde at Tucker's Station, the washing away of twenty feet of track and the wreck at Sabula all had something to do with stopping traffic on the Iron Mountain road.

The washouts were caused by the storm of the past thirty-six hours, and were of such a serious nature that all trains which left $t. Louis last night have been ordered held at Piedmont, Mo., while all incoming trains are now held at Poplar Bluff, Mo., thus leaving a clear field for the work of repair, which is already under way. General Superintendent Dickinson of the Iron Mountain, with several assistants, left $t. Louis this morning for the scene of the washouts, and wrecking and construction trains have been ordered to the spot. The report of the wreck of the stock train at Sabula, near Arcadia, by the collapse of a trestle bridge, had already reached the general offices. It had first been reported that the engineer, fireman and brakeman had been killed, but the second report stated that the engineer and fireman had escaped uninjured, while the brakeman, Royer, had been instantly killed. This latter report was confirmed this afternoon. Assistant General Manager Smith stated that this was the only serious casualty reported.

From Carondelet intelligence came this morning that at Tucker Station, on the Iron Mountain road, the south-bound accommodation train struck a land slide, which caused a delay of thirty minutes. The track was washed away for a distance of twenty feet. The washouts were caused by the storm of

The plague of rabbits in Australia cannot be described without seeming exaggeration to those who have not had experience of it. kept the recollection of England so fresh in the minds of pastoralists as to tempt them to very treasonable language concerning her whenever rabbits are mentioned.

The fecundity of the rabbit is amazing, and his invasion of remote districts swift and mysterious, says a writer in scribner's. Careful estimates show that, under favorable conditions, a pair of Australian rabbits will produce six litters a year, averaging five individuals each. As the offspring themselves begin breeding at the age of 6 months, it is shown that, at that rate, the original pair might be responsible in five years for a progeny of over 20,000,000! That the original score which were brought to the country have propagated after some such ratio, no one can doubt who has seen the enormous hordes that now devastete the land in certain districts. In all but the remoter sections, the rabbits are now fairly under control, one rabbiter with a pack of dogs supervises stations where 100 were employed ten years ago, and with ordinary vigilance the squatters have little to fear. Millions of the animals have been killed by fencing in the water holes and dams during a dry season, whereby they died of thirst, and lay in enormous piles against the obstructions they had frantically and vainly striven to climb, and poisoned grain and fruit have killed myriads more. A fortune of £25,000, offered by the New South Wales government, still awaits the man who can invent some means of general destruction, and the knowledge of this fact has brought to the notice of the various colonial governments some very original devices.

Smoke as a Drink, From the New York Herald.

A statute of Vermont declares that "if a party obtaining a verdict in his favor shall, verdict is obtained, give to any of the juror in the cause, knowing him to be such, any victuals or drink by way of treat either before or after such verdict, on proof thereof being made, the verdict shall be set aside."
This, it will be noted, prohibits a winning litigant or his lawyer from "treating" the jury to "any victuals or drink" for weeks and perhaps months after the verdict has been rendered. This is a remarkable law, but still more remarkable is the interpretation recently given to it by the Supreme Court of Vermont.

The Court has set aside a verdict because the successful complainant gave some of the jurors cigars after the verdict had been rendered. Cigars are not mentioned in the statute, but the Court holds that they come victuals or drink by way of treat eithe

COULDN'T FOOL THE OCULIST. Women Who Pretend to Be in Need of Eye-Glasses.

From the Chicago Herald.

From the Chicago Herald.

"You have no idea how often women and girls try to impose on us oculists," remarked one of the craft, who has a sumptuous downtown office on State street. "Cases where women, for one reason or another—generally out of vanity, they thinking it styrish and adding to the distinction of their appearance—wish to wear glasses, although their eyes have no need of them at all, are very frequent. And in such cases they all think it the easiest matter in the world to impose on us and to make us believe they really require spectacles or eyeglasses. It is as good as a farce to watch them on such occasions. After examining their eyes, for example, I have noticed nothing abnormal, let us say. Well, I suspect the real reason that leads them to ask for glasses, and I test them. For instance, I put first one pair of sample glasses on their eyes and let them read at certain distances, increasing and diminshing them. They will declare that, whereas before they saw next to nothing, now they see perfectly. Then I'll change the glasses for some of slighter power, encouraging them to say that now their vision is still further improved. Next I'll submit a pair of glasses are splendid," the ladies will say. Again I place powerful glasses on their eyes, and then I put a pair of corresponding glasses over these, entirely neutralizing the effects of the first pair, when the ladies will declare that now their sight has been wholly restored. Having now thoroughly satisfied myself that they are shamming, I take my measure accordingly. I had a patient of this kind in here no later than yesterday. She was a pretty girl of 16, whose real motive for making her parents and me believe that her eyesight was affected was that she is tired of going to school and wants to get into society. You never saw such a crestfallen young creature when I told her eyes, except, possibly, that she didn't use them enough. Yes, women are queer creatures, and nobody knows that better than the oculist."

HYPNOTIZING ANIMALS.

Some Interesting Experiments Made in

A writer in the Contemporary Review says:
"I take this cock, and I repeat on it what is known as the experimentum mirable of kircheri; it is fresh from the barnyard and a very pugnacious animal. If I hold it it struggles and screams; but I have only to place it very quietly and firmly on this board and draw a chalk line from its beak, which I have depressed till it touches the board, and it remains, as you see, firmly hypnotized. It is motioniess, or, as people would say, fascinated; and it will remain in this position for an indefinite time. I take this rabbit and adjust it on its back in this little trough, which is only used to prevent it from failing over, and it also becomes rapidly hynotized. The same thing happens with a guinea pig or a froz, or even with a young alligator. The limbs are plastic, can be moved in any direction, and stay in the position in which they are placed. So, also, with a number of other animals, such as birds and crawfish. Harting states that if this experiment be frequently repeated with a fowl it will often become permanently paralyzed in some of its limbs. If I take up the hypnotized rabbit or lift the cock they at once become active and come out of their hypnotic into their natural state. Position, tactile impression, are the means used here to produce hypnotism and possibly also mental depression. Visual impression produces similar effects with a lime light to those which Charcot produces on his hypnotic and hysterical patients.

"Horses are very susceptible to hypnotism by standing in front of them so that they have to look at you fixedly. This practice was introduced into Austria by a cavalry officer, Balassa. It is called after him, the Balassiren of horses, and according to Moil it has been introduced by law into Austria for the shoeing of horses in the army. Rabbits, when they are introduced into the cage of a snake, what is called fascinate themselves by staring at it. The process is commonly spoken of as though it rece or living fascinating influences on the last of the EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND struck the key-note of a winning Democratic campaign in his Rhode Island speech. The all in the administration of the government covers issues which may well take precedence of all others in the next campaign. The settlement of these questions is sufficient work for one campaign.

REPRESENTATIVE DALZELL of Pennsylvania, although he is a Republican, has tion. contributed the most valuable document up to date to the Democratic literature of the campaign. He has pledged the confident that the sales of the Globe-Dem

AN ABHORRENT SCHEME.

We do not wonder that President HAR RISON has "expressed himself as abhorring" the plan of forming tariff debating clubs for the purpose of collecting money for the Republican campaign fund. There

In the first place the plan is a paltry scheme which offers little prospect of bringing in adequate returns. To a President accustomed to the broad-guage methods and magnificent slush funds of such millionaires as WANAMAKER, CAR-NEGIE and MORTON, the methods and results of the petty tariff debating club are cheap and nasty.

In the second place, the club method is not business-like. It does not compare in point of efficiency with the ingenious schemes of QUAY, CLARKSON and DUDLEY, by which the office-holders are squeezed to does not insure that an employe pays the proper tithe of his salary. The percentage plan is therefore more just. The difference in the two plans may readily be perceived in the difference of results between the efforts of Special Agent BYRNES and of Club Organizer WIESEHAHN. One collected a hundred dollars where the other collected one dollar.

In the third place, it is too public and is too likely to bring down upon a pious Administration the scorn and contumely of the ungodly. The appearance of righteousness must be preserved even at the cost of a few campaign contributions, and the secret special agent does his work well. In the fourth place, the President has reason to believe that the tariff debating club dues go into the pockets of the enemies of his administration and the opponents of his pious intention to give the country an extension of the exhibition of truly good man in a great office.

Thus the considerations of business and policy combine to render the scheme abhorrent to the President and to urge him to make an example of Collector WEN-NECKER and his henchmen. Political Pharisaism is justified of her followers.

Poor old Republic. It is "not in it." DR. PARKHURST may not have raised hi standing as a minister by acting as a detective in the New York dives, but the report of the Grand-jury based upon the evidence he presented as a citizen has raised the standard of law enforcement in the metropolis. The dives are being closed up and the laws to all appearances strictly enforced. The news comes from Washington that the President is determined that Federal officials shall not be permitted to hold positions on party committees and take an active part in the management of the political campaign. This is an excellent move and is in accordance with the law, but in view of the fact that the offices are being used to strengthen the President's machine and special agents of the National Republican Committee are levying assessments upon Federal employes it has the appearance of a sop for reformers and a fine bit of that hypocrisy for which the Harrison Administration is noted.

At present the Levee front presents a picture often seen in the days when the river traffic was at its height, except that the great piles of merchandise on the slope instead of being surrounded by busy workmen and shouting mates are deserted with only a handful of white men to be seen occasionally going about them. Capt. Mason, president of the Anchor Line, who now has three great stenmers at his wharf-boat, said: "We cannot get men. We want 200 men to load and unload the City of New Orleans, the City and unload the City of New Orleans, the City of Providence and the Crystal City, but we have only fifty. The Providence should leave to-morrow or will leave if we can get a crew. We are offering our men what they ask—25 cents an hour—but they will not work. I hope to make some arrangement by to-morrow which will put an end to the trouble."

He is very popular with all classes of men, and even the deckhands are express ing their regrets that he should be incon-venienced by this strike through the obsti-nacy of the other boat owners. We frankly admit that without the most pow-until the signatures of several other boatowners are secured.

The most exciting incident during the strike occurred late Saturday night while the Gem City of the Diamond Jo line was loading. Forty men were engaged from 5 o'clock until il o'clock unloading and loading the boat under the supervision of First Mate James Boland. He agreed to pay 25 cents an hour and in seven hours he accomplished what would have taken forty men to do in twelve hours under ordinary circumstances, but being compelled to pay 25 cents an hour he made the 'rousters' work 'ron the run,' as they termed it. He shouted himself hoarse ordering the men about and kept them trotting with a wagon stake in one hand and a revolver in the other hand concealed in his pocket. One negro dropped a box of beer and knowing 'somethin' was going to drap,' he ran. Boland fired three shots at him as he was going but did not hit him. The boat left with only eight men on deck, and as it went under the big bridge four more shots were heard. It is supposed some one tried to desert by jumping overboard, but the facts will not be known until the boat returns in a few days.

Almost twenty white men and four negroes were unloading the Spread Eagle this morning under a st. Louis contractor who saw, it is said, he would lose money on the job on account of the rain, and to preven this he forced his men to run up the Levee in the face of the storm. When the rain was coming down in torrents, three white men ran out with sacks of wheat and after dropping them on the scales ran away and disappeared in the grog shops which fine the river front. Fearing a wholesale desertion, the contractor allowed the men to drop their burdens on the wharfboats until the rain ceased. This incident is but one of many occurring along the Levee all day and shows under what difficulties the steamboat men are laboring during the strike. Whatever truth there may be in the rumor generally circulated yesterday and to-day, that the backbone of the strike was broken, the condition of affairs on the paper as the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH. No.

You'll git t' fightin' ef yo' shoot craps en den yo'll muss dis yere strike all up. Mine w'at I'm tellin', you'll win sho' ef yo' doan drink whisky an' doan roll-craps."

At noon to-day the following boats were tied up on the Levee: The Cherokee, Ferd Heroid, City of Providence, Crystal City, Jay Gould, Benton, City of Savannah, Idlewild, Arkansas City, Josie of St. Louis, George Lysle, Spread Eagle and Louis Houck. Some of these boats were to have left the city yesterday, but could not get a crew to ship with them and others are billed to leave to-day, but will probably remain until to-morrow or later. The D. H. Pike left yesterday a day late, with only six men to handle the freight. Yesterday five boats reached the city well loaded, and two more cane in this morning. Some of them are being unloaded gradually by a few men, while others have not been touched.

encouragement. President Leverett Leonard, who a short time ago was a Democrat of the most aggressive type, is now a People's party advocate of the most ardent kind. At the conference of the labor unions at Central Turner Hail Saturday evening, a letter of regret at his inability to attend was read. The letter contained a most positive declaration for third party principles. and the People's party representatives, who got up the meeting, were highly elated in consequence. Democratic leaders throughout the State are now wondering just how many of the Alliance men will go over to the third party. The defeat of the free silver bill, will, it is now feared, have the effect of uniting the Alliance on a third party platform. This is one of the leading demands in the Alliance platform. At the last convention of the Alliance held last August at Pertle Springs, U. S. Hail, the outgoing President, opposed Leonard on the ground that he was a third party sub-treasury advocate and Leonard admitted the subtreasury charge, but denied that he had any intention of steering the organization into the new party. He also said that the Alliance should not be dominated over by politicians, which was a hit at Hail. Since the election of Leonard the membership has dropped of considerably in some quarters, out according to the figures of Agent Dines it has, gained in other sections. He said to-day that the shrinkage in Barton County and other southwestern counties had been offset by a substantial increase in Gentry and other counties. In the Alliance who never fail to attend the State conventions. Just what they will do in the coming campaign is now a subject of much speculation. The Democratic managers insist that no matter what course Leonard pursues he cannot induce the Democrats to abandon their party to go over to the political aggregation led by Polk, Taubeneck and Donnelly.

When the local redistricting bill is passed and appoint a commission to rearrange the senatorial and Representative District boundaries. Under the new order the city gains one representative in the lower branch of the Legislature, but the Senatorial Representation remains the same. The city now has six senators and fourteen representatives and the Commission will have to so arrange the districts as to properly equalize the population. If a partizan commission is selected a neat gerrymander can be made. The Circuit Court is composed of three Republican judges and two Democrats and the presumption is that if three commissioners are appointed two will be Republicans. The present legislative representation cousists of three Democrats, two Republicans and one Union Labor in the Senate and eleven Democrats and the turee Republicans in the House. The territory represented by Senator McGinnis and the turee Republican Senators lies in the southern part of the city, which is strongly Republican. The population in that section has increased largely since the last apportionment and the Republicans will demand a more liberal representation. Under the State law the Circuit Court must manage the redistricting. daries. Under the new order the city gains

NEW YORK, April 4 .- One of the most exciting balls ever held in New York took place early Frirday morning in Nilsson Hall. It was a Namcless bal masque. Its origin was the desultory talk of some well-known men agreed that the public balls during the last few seasons had not been particularly amus-ing and the suggestion was made that a congenial crowd should get up an ideal ball. Invitations should be limited to the number of fifty and the expense should be divided into fifty parts. Every man should bring the most attractive girl of his acquaintance, but not more than one. It was essential that the number of men and women should be the same to insure men and women should be the same to insure fun for all. The fifty men who were finally collected together included the best-known lawyers in the up-town clubs and cafes—men who have plenty of money and who spend it supper room was crowded with the The supper room was crowded with the gayest youths and giddlest beauties of whom the city boasts. It was getting late and lively when two shrill voices drowned the clatter of dishes, the pop of corks and the general buzz of conversation. Then came the ring of breaking glass. Everybody jumped up to see what had occurred.

"Sit down, Pauline," muttered the man who sat by the side of the furious girl, but she paid no attention to him, letting the vials of her wrath flow in hot words on the head of the woman who had just thrown a champagne glass at her.

A sneer was the only reply. Then Pauline seized her own glass and hurled it at her rival. It broke on the edge of the table, send. val. It broke on the edge of the table, sending a shower of glass in the lap of the one it was intended to strike. Pauline quickly threw another glass and it was shattered on the wall directly over the heaving bosom of the original aggressor.

The men on either side of the girls did nothing, but Young Wormser, at the end of the table, held out his arms and waved his hands at the girls to command peace. As soon as quiet reigned he shouted to the waiters to bring more wine, and as the golden bubbles sparkled in the new glasses he proposed that the trouble be drowned in drink,

"Kiss" Wormser, son of one of the wealthiest bankers in the city, made the proposition to touch glasses, which renewed the fare. Pauline dashed first a glass and then a saucer across the table without causing much damage, but the club-man sitting on the other side of the table was getting tired of the sport and he pulled his partner away. As he left he threw a glass at Pauline, and as it missed, he seized a big dish and hurled #t. Pauline's escort received the contents in his lap as it smashed on the edge of the table in front of him. Half an hour later, while Pauline was chatting with some people who had joined her, her escort walked to the other end of the room. She immediately came to the conclusion that he had joined her rival and she pursued him, holding a glass in her uplifted arm and threatening to dash his brains out if he dared to speak to any girl but her.

Shortly after 1 o'clock the announcement was made by Col. Carey that Miss Lole Fuller was about to dance. Then for the first time the people left the wine room and collected around the dancing floor, while almost all the lights were put out, even the big motto of the evening that blazed at one end of the room, "Don't Think." While waiting for the serpentine dancer to appear many young women who had hitherto refrained from indulging in cigarettes took advantage of the women who had hitherto retrained from indulging in cigarettes took advantage of the Miss Fuller went through the whole of the mazy dance on the floor, while the lime lights cast their colored glare upon her. She retreated amid uproarious applause. Lois Fuller's dance was the signal for more activity on the floor than had hithertofore prevalled. 'Kiss' Wormser, with the assistance of Clarence Minzesheimer organized a Parisian dance in the center of the floor and the dancers soon had white satin slippers dodging around their heads, while visions of white lace and taut silk stockings brought people from the tables that did not command a view of the proceedings. One of the gayest girls in the room, whose pretty round face was encircled with dark curly hair, and whose plump figure was revealed by her clinging white robes, selzed the violin in the liands of one of the members of the Hungarian band and after drawing some unearthly sounds from it, used the bow for a time in initation of an enthusiastic leader, and then kicked nastily at the violin. When she grew tired she hopped up on the orchestra stand and, bowing acknowledgments for the applause, demanded a cigarette.

The Daring Train Robber Leaves the Pen-

JEFFERSON CITY, April 4.—To-day Fred Wittrock, alias Jim Cummings, and W. W.

Wittrock, alias Jim Cummings, and W. W. Haight were released from the pentientiary. For five years and three months they have occupied fellow cells, wearing the stripes of the convict, and obeying the commands of the taskmaster. They have paid the penalty for the daring robbery of the Adams Express car on a Frisco Railway train out of St. Louis in 1886, and to-day the law has no further claim upon them. They are free to go as they please.

The story of their crime was retold in yesterday? Fost-Disfatch, and it is not necessary to touch upon that now, but an interview with the two men will be of interest:

A reporter for the Post-Disfatch called at the "pen," and upon asking to see Wittrock was shown into the office of the hospital and in a few moments was shaking hands with a tall, slender, rather good looking young man. The reporter told Wittrock his mission but had his hopes of an interesting interview considerably dampened by the quiet reply of the prisoner. "If have nothing to say for the press." Wittrock was, however, induced to sit down and talk. But he was very guarded, and answered interrogatories in a very unsatisfactory manner.

"Mr. Wittrock, now that you are going out or press." Wittrock was, however, induced to sit down and tails. But he was very guarded, and answered interrogatories in a very unstatisfactory manner.

"Mr. Wittrock, now that you are going out again into the world have you anything you care to say to the public?"

"I don't believe I have anything to say for the press, though I don't wan't you to think I have anything against the newspapers; they treated me very fairly from the time I was arrested, but It would do no good to talk. I am well enough advertised, but I will say that from the first day here to the present I have had the kindest of treatment. True, I had to work hard, but that is to be expected. The 'grub' was a little coarser than I had been used to, but a man can live on it. I have no complaint of any kind to make,"

"What was your occupation while here?"

"I worked in the harness shops, until about eighteen months ago, when I became partially paralyzed from my hips down. Since then I have been most kindly cared for, and the physician has done all that he could for me. He has relieved me very much, but my legs are still so weak that without the aid of banisters I cannot go up or down stairs."

"Wittrock, what was your reason for robbing the express car?"

"Well, you must understand that I was running a coal yard in Chicago, or rather trying to, and the first thing I knew I was in the hole. I had to raise $2,000, and thought that about the easiest way to do it was to relieve the express company of some of its surplus. In fact, there was no other way in which I could get that amount."

"How much of the stolen money did you return to the company?"

Wittrock smiled and said: "I do not know that I ought to answer that question. As the lawyers would say 'that is leading.' I will say this, that the company got back the most of it, but you know there were a good many to divide the money for, and the spent. I paid my debts, anyway. That's what I did with it."

"Will you have any capital to go into business with or to live on when you are out?"

"Will have paid my deots, anyway. That's what I wanted the money for, and that's what I did with it."

"Will you have any capital to go into bustness with or to live on when you are out?"

"I will have nothing. I shall live with my mother until I am strong enough to work."

"Where do your relatives live?"

"I have a mother and two sisters in Leavenworth, and I shall go there to-day."

"Have they visited you here?"

"No. They wanted to several times, but I could not get up courage to see them in these clothes. It is very embarrassing for me to talk to anybody while I have on these stripes. In fact, I don't feel easy enough to talk to you and hope you have all that you want. I will add that I have had enough of prison life and shall endeavor so to live that I will never be here again. But I fear my health is ruined and my life wrecked. The job didn't pay."

With that Wittrock bade the reporter good day and walked out. He is very frail and emaclated and is anything but fit to earn a livelihood.

The reporter next called for Haight, the man who planned the robbers and who was

The reporter next called for Haight, the man who planned the robbery and who was sentenced at the same time with Wittrock and for the same length of time. He likewise leaves to-day.

Haight refused to talk, further than to say he had been well treated and had had no trouble of any kind. He said that he was done with his past life, and that as the future was all left him, he should try to make the most of it.

When asked how he and Wittrock came to be together in the job, he replied:

"Oh, Fred and I were boys together in Leavenworth. I have known him all his life. Both of us have widowed mothers in Leavenworth, and we both start for that place to-day. What will I do? Weil, I don't know, but shall endeavor to live down my past and make a future for myself. I have had enough of this, I can tell you. But I ain't going to talk to you any more. Too much has been said about me by the newspapers now, and I hope you will say just as little as possible."

Both men have good prison records, and both give the great penal institution a good name.

Thus ends the last chapter of the story of the great robbery of the Adams Express Co. by Wittrock and his confederate.

The Concert Hall Cases Dismissed By Mr. Zachritz.

HIS INGENIOUS PLAN TO PROTECT HIS FAULTY INDICTMENTS.

Hugo Zeller is Tried Insincerely and Dis charged on the Evidence-The Other Cases Nolle Prosequied-Mr. Krum Be fuses to Be Made a Party to the Comedy -But Mr. Martin Consents.

Attorney S. S. Bass represented Prosecut ing Attorney Bernard Dierkes at the State's ocket in the Court of Criminal Correction to day, when Judge Claiborne got down to the cases against concert halls that employ romen to stimulate the sale of liquor.

The case against Hugh Zeller was the first I. Martin, the law partner of Mr. Bass. Nel-Last week Mr. Martin moved to quash the indictment against Zeller, and this motion was pending. All the indictments had the same error. Prosecutor Dierkes and State's Attorney Orrick C. Bishop having both de-ciared that the indictments were defective, it was generally supposed that Judge Cialborne would grant the motion at once and throw the cases out of court. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney William Zachritz, who drew up the indictments, understood, of course, that if they were quashed because of the defects in them he would stand convicted by the records of careless prosecution, and he wanted to bring the cases to a different end if possible. Chester cases to a different end if possible. Chester II. Krum was in court representing all the concert hall keepers. Just before the cases were called Mr. Zachritz went to Mr. Krum and asked him not to make the motion to quash he contemplated, but to let the cases come to trial. Mr. Krum refused. Mr. Zachritz said that he would have new indictments made if those were quashed. Mr. Krum replied that he had nothing to do with the prosecution. Mr. Zachritz retired and arranged another plan to save himself from a censuring court record.

His attorney is willing to withdraw his motion.

"We'll try the case on the facts," added Mr. Martin eagerly. The lawyers, including Mr. Krum, smiled at this devilment of Mr. Zachritz's plan. The Assistant Prosecuting Attorney put two of his weakest witnesses on the stand. They could not even prove that Mr. Zeller owned or managed the concert hall where the women were employed. The proceedings were to much of a burlesque, with a plainly understood object, that the lawyers, witnesses and court officials were all laughing. The first witness went down, after a disorderly examination, conducted by Prosecutor Zachritz and Mr. Martin together, and another witness was called. "What do you expect to prove by him?" asked Mr. Martin. "I don't know what I can prove," said the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney laughing.

The witness knew no more than the first. Mr. Zachritz did not call the police officers on the beat or any witnesses who might have proved the ownership of Zeller. Finally he got up and said:

"I move for the discharge of the defendant on the evidence, your honor."

Judge Claiborne discharged Mr. Zeller.
"Now your honor," said Mr. Zachritz, "I will enter a noile prosequi in all of those other cases of the same kind."

Mr. Martin clapped his client on the shoulder. "You're discharged. You go right over to my office and waight for me," said he. Mr. Zeller went out, following Mr. Krum, who had retired, satisfied, as soon as Mr. Zachritz announced the noile prosequi.
"Why did you withdraw your motion to quash?" Attorney Martin was asked.
"Old Mr. Zachritz ask you to try the case on the facts." he answered.
"Did Mr. Zachritz ask you to try the case, as he did Mr. Krum?"

"Oh, now, I'm not saying anything like that. We could do just as well with a trial as with the motion."
Attorney Martin then went away for a "Oh, now, I'm not saying anything like that. We could do just as well with a trial as with the motion."

Attorney Martin then went away for a while, and after thinking it over concluded that his explanation was not sufficient, and came back with another.

"You asked me if Zachritz had anything to do with my withdrawing that motion," said he. "No, he didn't. The fact is, I just wanted to get a higher fee. You see I can get a bigger fee when a case is ended, like this, than when the indictment is just quashed."

The special reason for calling the convention the sarly, namely, the return of the Pacific Coast Union to our association, added to our own very rapid growth since the St. Louis convention and the liquidation which this increase necessitates, makes the next convention the most important we have every set neid. Therefore every local union should send at least one delegate if at all possible; but if their means will and allow this, let such secure representation through the delegate of some of the weaker unions unite in electing a delegate to represent them. Nature tells us that we should get all possible enjoyment out of our food aud experience tells us that by the use of Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts we can improve its flavor, and more than that, stir up the languid palate to gratefully receive that which is intended to keep our body and brain in a healthy condition. We do not wonder that Dr. Price's Extracts of Vanilla, Lemon, etc., should become the favorite flavorings when a small quantity to any table delicacy so improves its taste in Texas, now advocates eating five meals a day. This is a good thing for anybody who can get them. The most of us are thankful to be able to find three. Half the world eat too much while the other half get too little. What Helen ought to do is to try and find some way to average it up. When people take cold they should endeavor to get their stomachs in good condition. This is one of the first requisites. If they will take Reid's German Cough and Kidney Cure they will have no difficulty on this score. This great remedy incites the kidneys to action, stimulates the digestion, restores the circulation to its normal condition, and thus enables the system to throw off disease. Ask your druggist for it, and if he will not get it for you write to us. Small bottles 25 cents,

Friends of the Display Must Come to the Front.

NEW YORK, April 4 .- There will be no naval review in New York harbor next year unless the friends of the movement take the initiative and push it vigorously. Secretary Tracy House Committee on Naval Affairs has not even considered the matter; the House itself is in an economical mood and ill-disposed to appropriate the money and the outlook is very discouraging unless the Senate shall insist upon the appropriation and bring the Insist upon the appropriation and bring the House to terms. Secretary Tracy is out of the city, but Assistant Secretary Stoley says it would not have been proper for the Secretary to include the appropriation for the review in his estimate to Congress, inasmuch as extraordinary expenditures of this character are never so included. The Secretary's falling, however, to bring the matter directly to the attention of Congress is likely to retard if it does not in fact operate to defeat the plan.

Father Bardens' Boomerang.

Father William Bardens, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, whose mysterious request for every member of the church to attend divine services yesterday morning led many to believe that he meditated taking some important step, disappointed the very large congregation. The communication which he made was a statement of the financial status of the church. Business of this kind is always distasteful to church members, and they usually stay at home whenever reports are expected. Father Bardens, however, read his report to the largest gathering of members of the year.

The St. Louis Browns have now all reported with the exception of Stricker. There are several leading clubs who need a second baseman, and they have indirectly expressed their desire to have Stricker. President von der Ahe is willing to pay him $2,000, and Stricker will be held on St. Louis list. Mr. Von der Ahe is willing to pay him $2,000, and Stricker will not accept. THE STORY A "FAKE."

President Von Der Ahe on the Alleged Base Ball Combine.

BUT THE ST. LOUIS MAGNATE HAS OTHER TROUBLES ON HIS MIND.

Storm, and He Will Have to Buy New Timber-Weights Assigned Horses in the Washington Park Handicaps-General Sporting News.

A story has been telegraphed over the cour try from Boston that in the twelve-club base ball league there exists a combine which has control of the whole organization. The story states that seven clubs-St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Louisville, Brooklyn, Washington and Baltimorehave agreed to settle all matters of importance by caucus or previous understanding, and then, when voting in the League, to vote together. This naturally would give them the control of affairs by giving them seven this combine of seven there is an inner, a secret combine of four, composed of Von der Ahe of St. Louis, Byrne of Brooklyn, Brush of Cluchinati and Phelps of Louisville, and that these four, having a majority of the seven, control the other three, and in consequence the entire league. Three out of the four votes control the inner combine. The whole affair was arranged, it is alleged, before the consolidation of the League and the Association was finally effected or ratified. The old League magnates, so the story says, are completely at the mercy of the combine of four. In support of the claims made concerning the combine of many control to the claims made concerning the combine of many control to the claims made concerning the combine of some recent the washington Park Club has made public the handleaps in two of the events to be contested at the summer meeting, the Oakwood and the Great Western, both for all ages. In each of the events Ed Corrigan's great horse, Riley, is given the position of honor. In the Oakwood he is asked to take up 125 pounds and in the Great Western, Poet Scout being third in the latter event. Huron is in the Oakwood at 107, the top weight for a 3-year-old. Semper Fidele is asked to carry the same weight and Balgowan and Surross 108 pounds each. Danout of the twelve votes in the body. The report goes further, and says that within this combine of seven there is an inner, a sethese four, having a majority of the seven, control the other three, and in consequence the entire league. Three out of the four votes control the inner combine. The whole affair was arranged, it is alleged, before the consolidation of the League and the Association was finally effected or ratified. The old League magnates, so the story says, are completely at the mercy of the combine of four. In support of the claims made concerning the combine some recent legislation of the league is quoted, among other acts the change from Day to Byrne on the Schedule Committee and the conduct of Nick Young toward the seven.

President Von der Ahe, charged with being one of the chief conspirators, was hunted up to-day and cross-questioned on the subject. The boss president was in trouble. He had told troubles to the police, too, and a report of them are on file at the station. Last night the wind had blown the right field fence and bleaching boards down a ten-foot embankment into a bed of mud. It was a sorry looking wreck and the President looked as sorry bleaching boards down a ten-foot embank-ment into a bed of mud. It was a sorry look-ing wreck and the President looked as sorry as the wreck. As the reporter waded toward Chris through the mud, the carpenter at work on the fence was just telling the organ-Izer of deep-laid base ball conspiracies that he would have to buy new lumber as the old stuff was so badly rotted with age and had been so patched that it was utterly useless.

It's all a newspaper fake," said the Boss President, referring to the base ball combine story. "There is absolutely no foundation for it. We all have carried out all agreements made and everybody is satisfied with matters as they are. There are some people who are never satisfied unless they are starting fights and making trouble. There may be a little jealousy in the East because they can't run everything, but that would not amount to anything if it was not always stirred up by these stories."

"What do they mean by referring to things that have happened since the Indianapolis meeting?" izer of deep-laid base ball conspiracies that meeting?"

"I guess they mean the organization of the committees and other work that was done with a perfect understanding on all sides."
The President was more interested in his wrecked fence and bleaching boards than he was in the story and did not seem to consider the latter worth more than a simple denial.

Augustus Fitzsimmons Fined for Creating a Scene at St. Elizabeth Church.

A white man, who gave the name of Augustus Fitzsimmons, precipitated a small panic in St. Elizabeth's colored Catholic Church, Fourteenth and Gay streets, at 7.45 o'clock sesterday morning. The congregation was leaving the church at the close of the 7 o'clock services. Jefferson Clay was in the act of opening the storm doors and Rev. Father Panken had just left the altar, when a woman near the door screamed loudly and grappled with a man who tried to pick her pocket. Clay saw the act and noticed that two men near the door opened a passage way for the fellow to escape. Clay seized him, but the man bit his thumb and obliged Clay to relax his hold. Clay gave 'chase and followed him up the stairs to the second floor of 1800 Morgan street. Officer Roach happened along in time to see Clay hasten upstairs after the man. The fellow hid in a closet and proceeded down a hall. But Clay and sev-
